

A SHOW OF HANDS

Spring 2022

Member, Associated Bodywork & Massage Professionals

Aromatherapy and Massage

Karrie Osborn

Aromatherapy, a process utilizing the purest essence of a plant, is a 4,000-year-old technique that has enhanced the health of everyone from modern-day pop divas to the scholars of ancient Greece. The art of massage has its own deeply rich roots, with even Plato and Socrates touting the value of hands-on bodywork for good health.

Separately, these two therapeutic traditions hold individual prowess in the realm of personal health and well-being. Together, however, they become a formidable health alliance that can address not only a person's physical health, but the health of the mind and spirit as well.

Let's see how it works. Essential oils are extracted from herbs, flowers, and plants with the intent to improve a person's health and well-being. Addressing everything from arthritis to whooping cough, effects of the approximate 3,000 oils found globally can range from sedative to stimulating and antibacterial to antispasmodic. The benefits derived from aromatherapy during a massage come in part from the contact the essential oil has on our skin, but even more so how it affects us when it's inhaled and absorbed through the soft-tissue linings of our nose and mouth.

The scientific explanation suggests that the essential oil's molecules, when

*Spring is Nature's way
of saying,
"Let's Party!"*
-Robin Williams

What essential oil is your favorite?

A Natural Complement

Our senses were designed to work best in conjunction with one another. Our sense of taste would not be as acute without our nose lending its support to the process. Our auditory senses might seem hollow if we weren't gifted with sight as well. Indeed, there exists a quiet partnership between all our five senses that's built on synergy.

inhaled, lock onto receptor cells at the back of the nose, sending an electrochemical message to the brain's limbic system. This message appears to trigger memory and emotional responses, causing messages to be sent to other parts of the brain and body. "In this way," says aromatherapist Danila

Continued on page 2

Office Hours and Contact

HAND & HAND Mobile Massage
Tom Saulnier - CMT, ZBT
805-501-2011
handnhand5@yahoo.com
www.handnhand.biz
Mon. - Sat., By Appointment

In this Issue

Aromatherapy and Massage
Nuking Food Safely
Try This Breathing Exercise

Continued from page 1

Mansfield, "the production of euphoric, relaxing, sedative, or stimulating neurochemicals is stimulated."

Judith Fitzsimmons and Paula Bousquet, authors of Aromatherapy Through the Seasons, say the use of essential oils creates a multifaceted effect: "The real beauty of aromatherapy is that it works on a cellular and physical level and also in the emotional, intellectual, spiritual, and aesthetic areas of your life."

It's really quite amazing when you think about it. Imagine an area the size of a small apricot pit, a 1-inch square area, filled with millions of sensory neurons that can capture, process, and store 10,000 odors. This is our olfactory system at work, and part of its job is to create a personal history for us based on scent, says clinical aromatherapist Ava-Marie Lind-Shiveley. "None of our other senses so well establishes a memory database." She says our response to scent is both physiological and psychosomatic. "Within an instant of smelling an aroma, we can be sent back to the first moment we were introduced to it."

By enabling us to recognize, revisit, and/or reclaim these various emotions and memories, aromatherapy allows another avenue of access for healing during a bodywork session. It creates a path through which the somatic experience can find its full strength.

When the powerful effects of aromatherapy are combined with massage, it can take us to another level, say aromatherapy educators Shirley and Len Price. "When, during a massage, the touch of the therapist is combined with the mental and physical effects of the essential oils, the client is helped to achieve a temporary separation from worldly worries, somewhat akin to a meditative state." Helping clients reach this level of relaxation is a primary goal of massage therapists and aromatherapists alike, so it makes sense that a partnership could beautifully exist.

A Scent Journey

"Scent is not simplistic," Lind-Shiveley says. "It is voluminous." She illustrates this point with a quote from Helen Keller: "Smell is a potent wizard that transports us across thousands of miles and all the years we have lived. The odors of fruits waft me to my Southern home, to my childhood frolics in the peach orchard. Other odors, instantaneous and fleeting, cause my heart to dilate joyously or contract with remembered grief."

If you decide to do some personal exploration into the world of scent therapy, proceed with due caution in both the quality of the oils you buy and how you dose and administer them. There is a dichotic nature inherent in aromatherapy. It is gentle, yet powerful; subtle, yet intense. There are essential oils strong enough to cause miscarriage, but there also are many oils safe enough to use on infants. The key is knowing how to utilize nature's gifts to provide the best, most effective therapeutic collaboration possible. Talk with your massage therapist about incorporating the science of aromatherapy into your sessions or ask about a referral to an aromatherapist in your area.

Karrie Osborn is contributing editor to Body Sense.

BALANCING

Bay Laurel, Cedarwood, Geranium

CLARIFYING

Juniper, Lemon, Peppermint

COMFORTING

Bergamot, Frankincense, Rose

ENERGIZING

Eucalyptus, Grapefruit, Rosemary

FOCUSING

Angelica, Sweet Basil, Lime

SEDATING

Chamomile, Clary Sage, Patchouli

UPLIFTING

Lavender, Orange/Mandarin, Pine, Tea Tree

Aromatherapy has roots in ancient cultures.

Nuking Food Safely

How To Microwave with Care

The microwave oven--that ubiquitous appliance now found in every American kitchen--is, for the most part, safe. However, microwaves can come with some specific health risks--including microwave exposure and chemical contamination--if they are old, not used properly, or used with non-microwavable dishes or coverings. Fortunately, following a few guidelines can help you effectively avoid microwave leakage and prevent chemical exposure, while using your microwave safely and soundly.

Avoid Leakage

- Ensure a tight seal by regularly cleaning the door seal with water and a mild detergent.
- Avoid microwaves that have loose doors. If the door doesn't close tightly, don't use it.
- Keep your distance, standing at least two feet away from, and to the side of, operating microwaves.

Prevent Exposure

- Avoid heating food in plastic or Styrofoam, which contain plasticizers. These leach into food during microwaving, creating xenoestrogens--substances that mimic hormones in the body and have been associated with birth defects, developmental delays, low sperm counts in men, early puberty in girls, and an increased risk of certain cancers.
- Steer clear of plastic wraps to cover your food during microwaving. Most of these also contain plasticizers that can leach into food, especially if they come in contact with hot, high-fat food.
- Use microwaveable glass cookware to ensure safe microwaving.

Microwave ovens are part of today's cook world and offer certain conveniences --there's little chance of escaping that fact. But by taking a few simple precautions, you can ensure microwave cooking adds to your life--not take away from it.

A few simple tips will ensure microwave safety.

Try This Breathing Exercise

Anne Williams

Do you ever find yourself unconsciously holding your breath when you're tense? This can cause tension to build in your body and may let the chest collapse, leading to misalignment.

Proper breathing provides oxygen to the muscles and body, helps you stay relaxed and centered, and even helps you maintain correct body alignment throughout your day. You can also use breathwork as part of a stress-reduction program by following this progressive relaxation exercise.

1. Begin by lying in a comfortable position without crossing your arms or legs, and focus on your breathing to create a slow, deep pattern. Inhale through your nose while counting to 10 and expanding your abdomen. Hold the breath for one second, and exhale through your nose on the count of 10. Inhale and exhale in this pattern five times.

2. Beginning with your head, tense your facial muscles as tightly as possible and count to five. Release the muscles completely, and sense the muscles feeling heavy and still. Work down your entire body, tensing muscle groups and then relaxing them. After the head, move to the neck, chest, arms and hands, abdomen, back, thighs and gluteals, lower legs, and feet.

3. After relaxing each set of muscles, mentally scan your body for any areas of remaining tension and ask those areas to relax completely.

4. Repeat the slow breathing exercise.

5. Gently begin to move your body to come out of the deeply relaxed state.

Try using progressive relaxation directly before or after your sessions, directly before bed, or at any time during the day as a pick-me-up. Focus on taking full, deep, even, rhythmic breaths. With a little practice, you can become more aware of your own breathing patterns and use breathwork effectively as you move throughout your day.

Finally, my Winter fat is gone. Now I have Spring rolls.

Welcome to "MASSAGE U."

Today's Subject: Spring is in the Air

You can see it in the trees. You can feel it in the wind. Spring is almost here and with clocks moving FORWARD 1 hour on 3-13-22, it's time to shed that winter lifestyle and emerge with a fresh outlook. A great way to "freshen up" is with massage. So be sure to schedule your massage as part of every healthy lifestyle.

For more information or to schedule a session, please call or visit mobilehands.biz. In Good Health!

Note: The preceding information is not medical advice. Please check with your doctor prior to starting any new health, exercise or nutrition plan - especially if currently under a doctor's care or if you have any pre-existing medical condition(s).

HAND & HAND

Mobile Massage...at your fingertips!

handnhand.biz

HAND & HAND Mobile Massage

1464 Madera Road N-251
Simi Valley, CA 93065

Member, Associated Bodywork & Massage Professionals